

ABSTRACT

In a computer-assisted learning method for certainly mastering the learning contents through simulated experience, a display screen 16a is divided into multiple small screen sections; an explanation text display field, in which explanation text related to predetermined training contents is to be displayed, is assigned to any one of the small screen sections; and related-information display fields, in which detailed information and/or illustrated information associated with the contents described in the explanation text display field is to be displayed, are assigned to the remaining small screen sections. A trainee learns based on the explanation text and its related information.